Course Description:
This course will introduce students to the major concepts of folklore as an academic subject through the lens of Canada. The course will cover all of the major regions of Canada, exploring how regional identity, ethnicity, language, religion, class and gender intersect to create specific forms of folklore and folk groups. Folklore is not neutral, but reflects the socio-political realities of specific places and times. Of particular interest will be this construction of an “authentic” folklore and “the folk,” either consciously or unconsciously, by those producing and consuming these items. The course will also attempt to understand the complex relationship between “authentic” folklore and an increasingly industrialized and globalized world.
Course Objectives:
With this course, I aim to encourage students to think interdisciplinarily about contemporary social categories and culture and develop as researchers, communicators and academic writers. This will counter essentialism, which posits a fixed character to social categories and national cultures, and teleology, which projects a framework of inevitable progress from the past into the present. It is hoped that students will question, and continue to question outside of the class, easy assumptions about not only folklore and Canadian identity, but about the wider contemporary world.

Assessment:
Class Participation, 10%: Participation will be evaluated on the basis of involvement in class discussion, largely taking place on Thursdays. Attendance is the prerequisite for a high participation grade.

Group Project, 25%, October 6th and October 13th: Students will be split into groups and assigned a region of Canada. Each group will explore a piece of folklore from that region. The regions are: Western Canada, British Columbia, Ontario, Quebec, the Atlantic provinces and the North. Each group will be responsible for creating a fifteen minute presentation and a three page report answering the following questions: What genre of folklore does this piece fall into? What is the provenance of this piece of folklore and how does its authorial origins and specific chronology shape it? What does this piece of folklore tell us about this region? About Canada?

Students will be marked based on the relevance of their work to the themes of the course, creativity and teamwork. The presentation will be worth 15% of the mark, with the remaining 10% allocated to the report. The report must be submitted by the following Thursday after the presentation.

Mid-term exam, 10%, October 27th.

Essay Proposal, 1 page and annotated bibliography, 5%, November 3rd: Students must provide a brief summary of their research topic and question as well as a briefly annotated bibliography referencing at least one primary source and at least two secondary sources.

Research Essay, 2000-2500 words, 25%: The research essay is the main opportunity for students to develop their analytical, writing and research skills. Students must use at least two primary sources and at least four secondary sources. The topic must thematically connect to the major course theme of exploring the relationship between folklore and Canadian identity. Students can submit the essay either November 24th and be guaranteed to have it returned by the last day of classes or can submit it on December 6th and have it returned at or after the final exam. There will be no difference in the evaluation criteria.

Final Exam, 25%: Scheduled by the registrar.

Please make sure to provide references in your work. Students may use any citation system they wish, but students must include page numbers in all references. The History Student's Handbook may prove useful for citation suggestions and format.
Be sure to provide complete bibliographic information for each source you use. Please note that a paper submitted without references is unacceptable and will receive a mark of zero.

Students are required to keep all research notes and rough drafts for their essays and may be required to hand them in. Keep this material even after the essay has been graded.

All essays must be written in 12 point Times New Roman font, double-spaced with margins approximately 2.54 cm on the top and bottom of the page and 3.17 cm on the left and right of the page. This is to ensure the standardization of all papers submitted.

Extensions will be granted on compassionate grounds or because of extenuating circumstances and only after consultation between the student and the instructor.

Late assignments will have a half-letter grade deducted per day, including weekends.

Cell phones must be turned off during class. Laptops are allowed in-class for the purpose of copying notes only.

Plagiarism:

Plagiarism occurs when one submits or presents one’s work in a course, or ideas and/or passages in a written piece of work, as if it were one’s own work done expressly for that particular course, when, in fact, it is not. As noted in The History Student’s Handbook, plagiarism may take several forms:

- Failure to cite sources properly may be considered plagiarism. This could include quotations, and wording used from another source but not acknowledged.
- Borrowed, purchased, and/or ghostwritten papers are considered plagiarism, as is submitting one's own work for more than one course without the permission of the instructor(s) involved.
- Extensive paraphrasing of one or a few sources is also considered plagiarism, even when notes are used, unless the essay is a critical analysis of those works.
- The use of notes does not justify the sustained presentation of another author’s language and ideas as one’s own.

Plagiarism is a serious academic offence and written work that appears to contain plagiarized passages will not be graded. All such work will be reported to the Faculty of Arts’ associate deans of students who will apply the penalties specified in the University of Calgary Calendar.

Universal Student Ratings of Instruction:

At the University of Calgary, feedback provided by students through the Universal Student Ratings of Instruction (USRI) survey provides valuable information to help with evaluating instruction, enhancing learning and teaching, and selecting courses (www.ucalgary.ca/usri). Your responses make a difference. Please participate in USRI Surveys.

Students seeking an accommodation based on disability or medical concerns should contact Student Accessibility Services; SAS will process the request and issue letters of accommodation to instructors.
