FC 8.3 Report from the Dean (Kevin McQuillan)

Strategic Plan

- Research Awards; congratulations to all nominees, and thanks to the heads for the many submissions. We have four winners, Greg McDermid (Geography), Suzette Mayr (English), Paul Serletis (Economics), and a joint submission, Michael Taylor (Germanic) and Annette Timm (History). A celebration will be held in the New Year.

FPC process completed in the Fall.

- It was a complex process under the rules of four former faculties. All went exceptionally well. Thanks to Rhonda Cooper-Burgess, Marilynne Smith and Paul Kubicek. There were 380 cases and only 5 appeals. Amazing work by the department heads and those who served on the committees.

Budget

- Cuts in the budget and frozen carryovers happened over the last few years. Department submissions are now all in. We have a projected deficit of $5 M. We need to seriously look at changes we need to do in addition to what we presently do. Need to address two areas – 1. Sessional teaching and 2. Grad Support totaling $11+ M.
- January meeting scheduled with the Provost and senior administration.
- Good News; commitment made to upgrade teaching facilities / classrooms on campus. Also on the faculty side, Facilities Planning have approved some of our requests.

Hiring - How are replacements considered?

- The Faculty of Arts is in a deficit, and the carryover will be all used up by the end of this year; we have 50 requests for hires in this faculty. The Provost has indicated that we will receive very limited position approvals. Some new positions have been approved due to the external funding.

We hope to have a better picture after the Jan.5th meeting with the Provost.
Our source of revenue is from central - $68 M base budget and has not and will not increase.
Salary increases are the responsibility of the Faculties to cover with no increase in the budget.
We have lost fifteen faculty members and with the increase in salaries, we still result in a $700,000 difference.

Strategic Plan (Welling, Oxoby, McQuillan)

- Undergraduates: (Joelle Welling)
CARC spent the fall working on Calendar Changes.
Dan Maher reviewing and working on changes in Interdisciplinary programs.
January – departments will receive information on high achieving students – active recruitment.
Advisory committee (Teaching & Learning) formed to address needs and ways to expand experiential learning.
Ideas for expansion.
Student clubs – matched funds
Class sizes being addressed particularly for first year students.
- Research & Graduate Education (Rob Oxoby)
Two broad areas – Grad Programs meeting in early January to work together and to apply for SSHRC
Prepare indicators for Research success.
Performance indicators
SSHRC workshops.
- Administration (McQuillan)
Enrolment levels – maximized
Change of administration – required to us to reduce our enrolment numbers.
Raising admissions average – maybe see slight decline in undergraduate numbers
Increase size of grad programs across university.
Interdisciplinary Programs – Law & Society and Urban Studies – may have to cap numbers.
Student Clubs – matched funding of their membership fees – payment in progress.
Celebrate 1. Research Awards and 2. Holiday Celebration for all staff on Friday afternoon.
Changes in Space; many going on. Science A has 'evicted' Anthropology sections and moving to Earth Science building with the balance of the department.
Economics now consolidated on Social Sciences floors 4 and 5.
Merging of Departments, the most controversial issue in the Strategic Plan. Reports have now been submitted by the areas involved and not surprisingly, with only one exception, there was not much enthusiasm. This is an issue that will not go away and will continue on beyond my term as Dean. Senior administration wants discussion of mergers of departments. Still is and will remain part of the Strategic Plan.

FC 8.4 Calendar Changes (Jim Gaisford)

The Process that is involved; The motions being brought forward are key to the strategic plan. All the material has been vetted through the departments or interdisciplinary programs, CARC, and then Executive Council and now to Faculty Council. From here it goes to APC & PCC. Considerable amount of editing has taken place and please do not hesitate to let us know if editing is required. Today, we are addressing fundamental direction and principles in these approvals. The first motion is the Omnibus motion addressing the items that have gone through departments, CARC, and executive council with little or no changes along the way.

This is followed by fairly routine items that have been tweaked along the way in the second follow-up motion.

Focus of attention directed to the subsequent motions which are major shifts in direction or major changes of programs

If there are areas in the first two motions requiring further attention, they can be moved to a separate motion if need be.

CARRIED

(McQuillan) The issue here is to remember that DUE consultation is required. At some point, decisions need to be made in our programs and offerings. An example is Art History program closure proposal; There is great pressure from Academic Program Committee as well as the Government of Alberta, because that program was suspended. This was presented by CARC, after extensive discussion, to Executive Committee, where it was turned back. . CARC is asked to readdress this and in February, Faculty Council will be asked to readdress this as well. Changes have to be made; either because of small numbers of students or shortage of faculty to support it. We are unable to sustain all programs – tough decisions are to be made.

Motion #15: Moved by Mary Pavelka to adjourn.

CARRIED

Meeting adjourned at 12:00 p.m.

Next scheduled Faculty Council Meeting – February 17, 2012 - Eckhardt-Gramatté Concert Hall (Rozsa Centre)

3. Summary of the Proposed Changes

Faculty of Arts

01 Faculty – COOP

Process: Approved by CARC; Approved by EC (Omnibus Motion); now to FC.

Overview:

- Additional flexibility is allowed for the assessment of COOP Work Term Reports.
- Additional flexibility is allowed for students to take an academic course during a work term.
- The preparatory courses needed prior to the first work term are streamlined.
- As General Studies 300 is being split into two half courses, CMCL 301 and 303, it is no longer necessary for students in the Multidisciplinary BA to have this finished prior to the first COOP work term.
- There are additional mainly editorial changes.

02a Faculty – Courseload

Process: Approved by CARC; Approved by EC (Omnibus Motion); now to FC.

Overview:

- Students are permitted to register in 6 HCEs per term to provide flexibility and allow the smooth functioning of waiting lists.
- There are additional mainly editorial changes.

02b Faculty – Interdisciplinary Fields

Process: Approved by CARC; Approved by EC (Omnibus Motion); now to FC.

Overview:

- The upper limits in interdisciplinary fields (12.0 FCEs for a BA Honours, 10 FCEs for a BA, and 6.0 FCEs for a Minor) are removed. These upper limits were non-transparent to students due to the complexity of interdisciplinary fields and administratively unenforceable. Further, the problem of over-specialization, which these limits were intended to prevent, are much less serious with interdisciplinary as opposed to disciplinary fields.

03 Faculty – Convocation Awards

Process: Approved by CARC; Approved by EC (Separate Motion); now to FC.

Overview:

1. A silver medallion is introduced for students completing UofC Collaborative Degrees at Red Deer College, but it is specified that such students are not eligible for Department Silver Medallions or the Faculty of Arts Gold Medallion.
2. A minimum number of courses to be completed at the University of Calgary is eliminated from the award criteria.
3. The tie-breaking criteria are tightened and made more consistent

Prior 2010-2011 it appears that students in the UofC Collaborative Programs in English, Psychology and Sociology at Red Deer College had been implicitly excluded from Department Silver Medals and Faculty Gold Medals even though the official criteria were silent on this matter. The revisions to the criteria for 2010-2011 for the new Faculty of Arts remained silent on the question of eligibility, but new staff implementing the criteria did so in an inclusive manner with the result that the Silver Medallions in two of the three Departments and the Faculty Gold Medal went to students in the Collaborative Programs at RDC.

Notes:

1. While the principle of inclusion suggests that there should be a Convocation Award for UofC Collaborative Students at Red Deer College, the inevitable differences in academic environments and grading standards suggests that they should have a separate award and not be eligible for the Department silver medallions or the Faculty gold medallion. The new Silver Medallion could be recognized at RDC as well as UofC

Convocation Ceremonies. (At a meeting with the Dean in October 2011, there was a strong consensus among the Heads of the participating Departments in support of the proposed revisions.)

2. Since the requirements for Faculty of Arts degrees specify minimum number of courses to be taken at UofC (e.g., rather than as transfer courses), having the requirement restated for the medallions is redundant and creates unnecessary administrative bureaucracy.

Department of Sociology

43 SOCI – Course and Program Changes

Process: Approved by CARC; Approved by EC (Separate Motion); now to FC.

Overview:

- There are minor changes to the prerequisites to SOCI 487.
- The four concentrations formerly available in Sociology will be discontinued. A comprehensive rationale for this decision is provided in the document. The Department's data indicate that in Fall 2010, approximately 26% of SOCI majors had declared a "Criminology..." concentration and 13% had declared a "Gender..." concentration. While interest in the Criminology Concentration is very high, the Department has struggled to provide a full slate of courses in the area every year and it has become increasingly reliant on sessional instructors. Demand for two of the other concentrations, "Ethnicity..." and "Health...", do not warrant the commitment of resources.

Note:

- Students often declare their concentrations late in their programs, which implies that the proportion of SOCI students graduating with a Criminology has been considerably higher than one might anticipate from the above data. Over the five years from Fall 2005 through 2009, on average 24 % of all SOCI majors had declared Criminology concentrations, but over the corresponding five years from 2006 through 2010, an average of 48% of SOCI graduates had Criminology concentrations.
