- Thalamus is pivotal in tinnitus-related activity in both animals and humans.
- ALFF connectivity is consistent with that based on correlated SFRs and gamma.
- SFRs in auditory cortex are driven from outside the ascending auditory pathway.
- The prefrontal cortex is ideally situated for gating thalamo-cortical output.

EVENTS/ ANNOUNCEMENTS

Primals Project -Penn's Positive Psychology Center Announcement

The Primals Project at Penn's Positive Psychology Center is delighted to announce the Primals Research Student Awards for PhD students and postdoc trainees only. Grants of up to $20,000 will be awarded for the empirical study of primals—also called “primal world beliefs.” Primals are basic perceptions of the world's general character. A foundational taxonomic effort recently identified 26 hierarchically arranged primals that are stable over time and orthogonal to most demographics, yet strongly correlated to behavior and wellbeing (Clifton et al., 2019). Most variation is explained by three higher-order primals: the beliefs the world is Safe (vs. dangerous), Enticing (vs. dull), and Alive (vs. mechanistic). These awards are intended to encourage original research into the origins and psychological impact of any of the 26 primals. 2-page submissions due May 27, 2022 (details online).

Call for Paper Submissions

The Canadian Graduate Journal of Sociology and Criminology/Revue canadienne des études supérieures en sociologie et criminologie (CGJSC/RCESSC) is a bilingual, peer-reviewed academic journal organized and maintained by graduate students in the Department of Sociology and Legal Studies at the University of Waterloo in Ontario, Canada. The journal welcomes submissions from Canadian graduate and undergraduate students for our August 2022 edition. We encourage scholars from an array of disciplines to submit their work for publication and welcome work from several disciplines, including: history, political science, anthropology, and many others.

The CGJSC welcomes publications that make an original empirical, theoretical, or artistic/creative contributions to the fields of sociology, criminology, and other related disciplines. This journal accepts submissions employing quantitative, qualitative, and mixed research methodologies. We encourage submissions from a broad range of theoretical approaches and place special emphasis on interdisciplinary engagement, critical analysis, and innovative scholarship. In line with this mission, we also invite alternative and non-traditional submissions that extend beyond academic articles, such as: visual and textual media, critical commentaries, policy briefs, reflective essays/position papers, book or film reviews, poems, comics, short stories, and photographic essays.

Our deadline for submissions is 11:59 PM EST on July 1, 2022.

Submission details and guidelines may be accessed at:

SPSD Psychology Research Group

The Social, Personality, and Social Development (SPSD) Psychology Research Group gathers every week on Mondays from 12:00 pm – 1:30 pm in AD 247. We discuss and learn about research being conducted by faculty, students, and affiliates of the University of Calgary.

The first session for the Spring 2022 semester will be on Monday, May 2nd, where we will start by determining the presenters for the rest of the semester. We'll be glad to hear from anyone wishing to present their research at the SPSP meeting.

As always, everyone is welcome to attend, and please feel free to bring along anyone else who might be interested.

The meeting will be held in a hybrid format. Although we will meet in person in AD 247, attendees who wish to participate remotely can use the following Zoom link, which will remain the same for spring and summer.
