Volunteer & Job Positions

Volunteer with Let's Talk Science!

Let's Talk Science (LTS) is an award-winning, national organization that is focused on education and outreach in the community. We support learning and skill development using science, technology, engineering and mathematics. We have a variety of programs... but this year LTS is operating differently.

We are recruiting volunteers to start outreach programming in Fall 2022. Volunteers will provide science education through virtual demonstrations and take part in developing their own programming as well. The time commitment is flexible, so you are able to choose how much, or little, that you are wanting to take on.

As a volunteer, you will have access to benefits and development opportunities! These include, and are not limited to: UofC CCR hours, Reference letters/verified hours, Development of leadership, communication and teaching skills, Networking and collaboration
